Speech of Frederick Douglas.

The Camp House was filled with one of the best audiences of the campaign on Saturday evening, to hear the colored man, Frederick Douglas, speak for Freedom. How many came from mere curiosity to see a black man address a white audience—how many to see how such a man would be received by such an audience—how many expecting to witness an exhibition which they could turn to ridicule—it is impossible to say; but the meeting was not only a large one, but the audience attentive and interested throughout, and the speaker able and eloquent. Douglas, as he himself said, makes no pretentions and no attempts to argue great commercial questions, to discuss tariffs, and banks, and land matters—but on the great question of Liberty and Slavery, he is at home. Born a Slave, and a chattel for 20 years, and gaining his education amidst discouraging difficulties of many kinds, he knows personally the difference between Free and Slave institutions, and it is well to listen to such men.

We are glad that Douglas has spoken in Milwaukee, if it were only to show our people an example of the sort of men and minds and souls which the system of Slavery keeps under its lash. Who is there in this city that will dare stand up and say that such a man has not a right to own himself—that he has not a right to his own labor, to control his own movements—to enjoy his own earnings—to whatever benefits of education he is capable of? Yet Slavery claims to own among its other chattels all the Douglases, body and soul; and one of them—Stephen A. to wit—rejoices in his captivity, and goes actively to the meanest services of his master, while Fred. repudiates and despises both.

The Election.

We are yet without full returns from Pennsylvania. On the State ticket the democratic majority is probably 5,000. Upon the Congressional ticket, as far as we have returns, the Republicans have done better. The New York papers of Friday claim that the Republicans have elected the majority of the delegation.

Ohio gives some 30,000 Republican majority in the State and elects 14 Republican members to 7 Democrats.

Indiana has probably given 4 to 5,000 majority for Willard (dem.) over Morton (Rep.) and elected 5 Republicans and 5 Democrats to Congress, with one district in doubt. Legislature divided.

The closeness of the vote in Pennsylvania and Indiana will greatly intensify the struggle next month. We cherish a lively hope that both States will pronounce for Fremont and Fagnot.

The Indiana Election.

The Chicago Tribune gives a variety of returns from the late election in Indiana, from which the significant fact is ascertained that the Republican losses have occurred in the counties where the Know Nothings have their greatest strength, showing that they have voted for the Buchanan candidates. In spite of this, the Republican gains in other parts of the state are so large as to have worked down the democratic majority to a low figure. The democrats only claim 3 to 5000 majority now, whereas they had over 12000 at the last state election. What little they have, if any, will be swept away in the coming November storm, which will bring out thousands of men who will not vote except on the direct issue of Free-dom or Slavery.

Destructive Fire at Chicago.

We learn by private despatch, that the extensive Beef and Pork packing establishment of Hough & Co., at Chicago, was entirely destroyed by fire on Saturday morning last. The building was a very large and substantial one, costing $40,000 and it contained, at the time of the fire, nearly $60,000 worth of beef, salt, barrels, &c., all of which was totally consumed. The fire caught from the sparks of a propeller, lying at the dock and the propeller was also burnt. There was an insurance on the property of only $25,000. The loss falls heavily on an enterprising firm, one of whose members, Mr. C. J. Kenshaw, is well known and highly esteemed by our business men, whose sympathies have been strongly moved by this stroke of hard fortune to a general favorite.

Not Signed.—We are glad to learn that Gov. Bashford withheld his signature from the bill appropriating $5,000 apiece to himself and ex-Governor Barstow, towards defraying the expenses of the Gubernatorial contest last winter. The indecent haste and unconstitutional manner in which this bill was forced through the Senate, at the last moment of the session, was objection enough to its becoming a law.

Glorious Western Reserve.—The eleven Western Reserve counties of Ohio—sometimes called "Cheesedom"—gave a Republican majority of twenty-four thousand. Six counties gave over 2,000 each; only one county gave under one thousand.

Nominations.—J. A. Johnson is the Republican candidate for Assembly in the Albion, Dane Co. district.

J. M. Taylor is nominated for Assembly by the Republicans of the Fond du Lac city district.

Fox and Wisconsin River Improvement.—We understand that Gov. Bashford has appointed Alexander Mitchell, of this city, and Charles Butler, of New York, Trustees under the act of the last Legislature relative to the Fox and Wisconsin River Improvement.

North Eastern R. R. Grant.—The Governor has named Gen. Porter, of Fond du Lac, and Levi Bashford, of Oshkosh, as the two additional Corporators on the North Eastern Land Grant.

Cologne, June 25, 1856.

Strasburg, a fine old city of 100,000 inhabitants, is situated on the river Ill about one mile above its junction with the Rhine, and was once the capital of ancient Alsace in the time of the Romans. Subsequently it belonged to the Germans and remained so until the year 1681, when it was seized by Louis XIV, and since that period has belonged to France. The working classes generally speak the German, but both the languages of France and Germany are spoken among the higher classes with as much readiness and ease as we speak our own language at home.

Having but a short time to stop I jumped into a carriage and was taken at once to the cathedral which ranks among the first in the world. Although differing in many respects from St. Peter's Church at Rome, St. Stephens in Vienna, and the cathedral at Milan, which I have described at length, still they bear a general resemblance to each other in their architecture and outlines. The spire of the cathedral at Strasburg I think, is the highest of all others, it being 474 feet high—24 feet higher than St. Peters, and 140 feet higher than St. Paul's, London. The whole design and work, both in the exterior and interior, is very beautiful, and receives merited encomiums from all travellers and writers. The windows of stained glass are particularly fine.—One of these is in the form of a rose, fifty feet in diameter. This is in the west end of the church, and 230 feet from the ground. The cathedral is about one thousand years old, and so perfect by is it preserved that in all probability after ten centuries more shall have passed away, it will not look much older than it does now. The church too has many fine tombs in it—among those that have been buried here are Erain of Steinbach, the architect of the Cathedral, and General Kleber.

But there is nothing in the interior that excites so much admiration as the great clock.—This is a wonderful piece of mechanism and ingenuity. There were more than fifty persons there at precisely twelve, when it struck the twelve hours. The height is some forty feet, and it is made in one of the walls of the main body of the cathedral in a pyramidal form. The lower part contains the mechanical portion of the work which is in full sight and very complicated. On appropriate dials are respectively arranged the seasons, years, months, weeks, days, hours, minutes, seconds, the signs of the zodiac, the ecliptic, changes of the moon, eclipses, and many other things connected with astronomical science. Above are allegorical subjects illustrating the seasons of human life, events in biblical history, and other kindred subjects. At noon a cock which surmounts the whole, flaps his wings and crows three times. The sound of its voice is as natural as it looks, which is perfectly life like. The whole machinery is then in motion, and the figures come out and perform their respective parts. These are of the size of life.—Among them of course old father Time is conspicuous. I went away regretting that even this great master piece of skill could not arrest his progress and leave me a few more hours to examine the cathedral and city. But its province is not to stop the fleeting hours but to mark them, and it has well done its task for nearly ten centuries.

In the church of St. Stephen in this city, which I also visited, there is a very fine marble monument to Saxe, one of the early marshalls of France. It was done as a token of friendship and respect for the deceased, by Louis XV of France. No one can approach this beautiful piece of statuary, but that he feels grief in his heart, even if he knew nothing of the person whose memory it was designed to perpetuate. It represents the hero descending to the grave with a countenance undimmed by sadness or regret, but radiant with the hope of immortality, while France, in the form of a beautiful female figure, is in vain endeavoring to save her valiant son with one hand, while with the other she vainly tries to stay the angel of death, who is sternly and deliberately approaching. This work is the great masterpiece of the sculptor Figalie. Among many other things that attracted my attention here were the bodies of two individuals, said to be father and daughter, which were in a remarkable degree of preservation, although having been dead three centuries and a half and never embalmed. Why they should be thus left open to the gaze of the public here in the church I could not learn.

After riding all day and all night, in the gray twilight of the morning, I once more found myself in Paris again. I intended only to stop a few days, but those few days reached into a few weeks. I find this is the case with most travellers, and particularly so with our own countrymen. I suppose there is no city in the world more visited by strangers than Paris and I was not at all surprised from what I had heard, to find it full of Americans. The politeness of the French does not stop with the suavity of their appearance, and the etiquette they invariably observe in their intercourse with each other and toward strangers, but it extends practically through every department of life from the emperor down to the plainest bourgeois. The churches, galleries of art, institutions of learning, gardens and monuments are all open and free to the stranger. In fact there is more liberality to him than to a citizen, for many of these places of amusement and instruction are only open for citizens one day in a week, while to strangers there is access at all times.

When in Paris one year and a half ago, I was much pleased at the novelties and attractions that everywhere arrested my attention, as well as the polite and dashing style of the people.—But then it was in the depth of winter, but on this visit in the leafy month of June, which is the time to see this beautiful city, I have been more confirmed in believing that it stands second to no city in the world in point of refinement, learning and those progressive improvements in art which tend to the advancement of mankind. While there I attended an agricultural exhibition at the palace of industry, and I was surprised at the metamorphoses that had taken place. All the fabrics, statues, paintings and all other works which embellish our parlors and ornament our studios are gone, and in their place among fountains that cooled the air with their spray, were horses and oxen, mules and sheep, threshing machines and mills, steam inventions of almost all descriptions and various other improvements calculated to lessen labor.—Acres of ground were covered with the products of France as well as many other countries that sent contributions. The Emperor and Empress took an active interest in this exhibition, and visited it at least once each week.

One day I strolled along towards the palace of Luxemburg and the extensive gardens attached to it. I was in pursuit of the monument erected to the memory of Marshal Ney. Before I had quite reached the part of the garden where it stands, I saw a tall, venerable, military looking man in half military dress, leaning on the arm of a beautiful girl—a daughter, thought I, and a prop sent by a kind Providence to steady the parent stock as it is swayed by the winds of infirmity and old age. On getting nearer I observed they were fellow boarders, although I had not got acquainted with them. I found that they were going to the same spot. Being invited to join them I did so, and he told me the following story, which I have no doubt was true to the letter. He said he belonged to the 93d regiment of Highlanders, Scotland, during the war with France, and was in this when Ney was shot. That on the evening he was sauntering in these very grounds, when he came across a young French soldier with whom he had formed an intimate acquaintance, and who at the time looked unusually dejected. On rallying him, the Frenchman told him that he had a painful duty to perform, the nature of which he was not at liberty to divulge, but that if he would be at the other side of the gardens, opposite to where they were then talking, the next morning shortly after the break of day, he would see, and judge for himself. Out of curiosity more than anything else, said the old man, I got up the next morning and was on the spot at the designated time. There was there already a file of twelve soldiers, and a reserve of as many more. In front of them was Marshal Ney. At a little distance stood a group of three or four ladies, and with the exception of two or three officers with the soldiers, were all that were present.—There were however a couple of priests who wished to converse with the general, but he motioned them off, and desired them to say nothing to him. The soldiers were drawn up at about twelve paces distant in front of him, and on Marshal Ney's giving the signal with his handkerchief, for he refused to be blind-folded, a simultaneous fire was heard from the platoon, and he that was justly styled by Napoloon "the bravest of the brave" fell a corpse. Neither of the men knew who fired the fatal shot, for there was one blank cartridge among the number and neither one knew in whose gun it was. The moment, he continued, that Ney fell, those ladies who stood at a little distance rushed forward with one frantic scream, and staunched the wounds with their handkerchiefs. He did not know who they were, whether friends or not, for they were immediately taken away from the body. But he saw them take away the handkerchiefs saturated with blood.

The old man afterwards in other years was made an officer, and is loyal to the British crown, but said to use his own language "that it was the blackest page in the life of the Duke of Wellington, that he had not saved the life of Ney, which he might have done." The monument is of bronze and of colossal size, the Marshall standing in an attitude of beckoning his soldiers to follow him. On a pedestal beneath is recorded the names of his hundred battles. Were hard their horrors, and often times deeds of cruelty and blood perpetrated—but these take place in the heat of battle, in the excited death-struggle for victory. But after the war was over as in this case, and a single nation overpowered by a combination, it was no less than murder for these conquerors in cold blood to pass sentence of death upon a brave officer of a fallen enemy, who fought only in defence of his country as his sovereign. Had they been magnanimous and brave, like their victim, poor Ney would have lived the few years nature allotted him, to bless and to be blessed by his friends and country.

Audacious Falsehood.

The News of Saturday republishes for the fifth, or sixth time, the brazen and branded forgery from the London Chronicle, about the election of Fremont being "the first blow to the separation of the United States," and improves upon this fabrication by another and still grosser Minchausenism, representing the British Chancellor of the Exchequer to have subscribed one hundred thousand dollars of "British gold" to aid in the election of Fremont! What must be thought of the cause which needs the aid of such palpable, preposterous, unmitigated lies?

Buchanan and K. N. Bonds.

Ex-Governor Floyd, of Virginia, one of the Buchanan electors for that State, in his recent speech at the Merchant's Exchange, Wall Street, said:

"I find from a sojourn of one week in New York, that the enemy of Democracy is not the American party. There are bonds of union between the Democracy and the American Party.

Of course there are. The Buchanan and Know Nothings are united in opposition to Freedom and Fremont, and each is ready and willing to help the other, if thereby they can defeat the Republicans.

Ohio Election.—Cuyahoga County gave a Republican majority of 2106 at the recent election and Cleveland City 312 do. The Cleveland Herald says:

The victory of the Republicans in the city was a glorious one. It was a triumph over the straight out Locofocos, and their faithful allies the Fillmoreites.

The majority over the coalition we make to be three hundred and twelve. This result is owing in a very great degree to the young Fremonters, the Germans, and the Fremont Democrats.

The Fillmore K. N.'s did their best for the Buchanoers in Ohio, but they labored in vain.

La Crosse and Milwaukee R. R.—The stock of this road continues to rise steadily in Wall Street. The Tribune of Thursday says:

The western shares were strong, generally, but without important change, excepting in Racine, which was in large demand and advanced 1@2 on earlier rates. At private sale, 712 shares sold at 83, which is 2½ per cent higher than yesterday's prices. The speculative interest in and the west for this stock are large, as the most extravagant estimates are founded on the value of the land grant. The land is represented to be of the most fertile character, and the country through which the line runs, the Garden of Wisconsin.

On Friday the Tribune says that 83½ was bid for the stock and 84 asked.

A Manly Utterance for Freedom.—We invite attention to the admirable letter in to-day's paper from Professor Hedrick, of the North Carolina University, declaring for Fremont, and giving strong reasons for the faith that is in him. How the ears of Northern Doughfaces must tingle and their cheeks crimson, as they read this eloquent declaration, by a Southern man, for Fremont, Freedom and Union!

A Local Quarrel.—We regret to notice, by the New Lisbon Republican, that the county seat quarrel between that place and Mauston is likely to hazard the election of a Republican Assemblyman in November. Our friends in that quarter ought to appreciate the fact that the election of a U. S. Senator depends upon the complexion of the next Legislature, and that every vote may be wanted.

New Bank at Racine.—The Racine Advocate says that a new banking institution, under the name of the Commercial Bank, is soon to go into operation in that city, with a capital of $100,000. The Advocate learns that E. S. Durand, Esq., President of the Racine and Mississippi R. R., is spoken of as President of the Bank.

New Route from Beloit to Janesville.—The Beloit Journal says that arrangements are being made to run a train of cars directions this city to Janesville, on the Racine and Miss. and the Chicago and St. Paul R. R., saving time and avoiding all staging.

George Peabody.—This opulent London Banker, who is now on a visit to his native land, is spending a few days at Albany, and the Journal says that he desires during the autumn and winter, visiting Canada, Chicago, Milwaukee and other Western and Southern cities.

Enthusiasm.—A correspondent of the New Hampshire Statesman writes that paper gratifully with an account of the late Democratic Mass Meeting at Stoughton, where, says the writer, "over 1500 voters were in the procession, when in truth the procession numbered just seventy-six men and boys!

Kansas Fund.—We received yesterday from T. H. Jr., Manchesterville, $1.00, in a letter, for the Kansas Aid Fund, and have handed it over to T. B. Mason, Treasurer of that fund, to whom all monies had better be sent, to save the trouble of acknowledging their receipt here.

A VOICE FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

Professor Hedrick, of the State University, in favor of Fremont and Freedom—Stands side by side of the Practical Working of Slavery upon the Soil and Views of the White Population—Probable Expulsion of the Rebellious Professor from the University and the State, &c., &c., &c.

From the Raleigh, N. C. Standard—Buchanan organ.

Prof. Hedrick, of the University.

As a matter of justice to Professor Hedrick, we publish to-day what he styles his "defence" against the charge of being a Black Republican. There is not a point made or presented in this defence, which could not be triumphantly met and exposed; but surely it cannot be expected of us, or of our correspondent, "An Alumnus," or of any citizen of the State, to argue with a Black Republican.

The Professor placed his defence with the opinion that "those who prefer to denounce him, should at least support their charges by their name."—The author of "An Alumnus" is a gentleman of high character, and entirely responsible for whatever he has said, or may say. He is a resident of this place, and his name can be known, if at all necessary.

We adhere to our opinion, recently expressed in the Standard:—The expression of Black Republican opinions in our midst is incompatible with our honor and safety as a people. That man is neither a fit pupe a safe instructor of our young men, who ever inclines to Fremont and Black Republicanism.

This is a matter, however, for the Trustees of the University. We take it for granted that Prof. Hedrick will be promptly removed.

Prof. Hedrick's Defence.

Messrs. Editors:—In the last Standard I see a communication signed "Alumnus." Although my name is not mentioned therein, still I suppose there is little doubt that it was all intended for me. Now, politics not being my trade, I feel some hesitation in appearing before the public, especially at a time like this, when there seems to be a greater desire on the part of those who give direction to public opinion to stir up strife and hatred than to cultivate feelings of respect and kindness. But, lest my silence might be misinterpreted, I will reply, as briefly as possible to this, as it appears to me, uncalled for attack upon my politics.

Then, to make the matter short, I say I am in favor of the election of Fremont to the Presidency; and those are my reasons for my preference:

1st. Because I like the man. He was born and educated in the South. He has lived at the Northand the West, and therefore has had an opportunity of becoming acquainted with our whole people—an advantage not possessed by his competitors. He is known and honored both at home and abroad. He has shown his love of his country by unwavering devotion to its interests. And whether teaching school for the support of his widowed mother, or exploring the wilds of the great West; whether enlarging the boundaries of science or acquiring for our country the "golden State;" whether establishing a constitution for this youngest daughter of the Union or occupying a seat in the Senate of the nation—in every position, and under all circumstances—whether demanding heroic daring or prudent counsel, he has always possessed the courage to undertake and the wisdom to carry through.—In reference to the value of his services in California, Mr. Buchanan says "he bore a conspicuous part in the conquest of California, and in my opinion is entitled to be called the conqueror of California than any other man." For such services and such ability I love to do him honor. "Platforms" and principles are good enough in their places, but for the Presidential chair the first requisite is a man.

2d. Because Fremont is on the right side of the great question which now disturbs the public peace. Opposition to slavery extension is neither a Northern nor a sectional ism. It originated with the great Southern statesmen of the Revolution. Washington, Jefferson, Patrick Henry, Madison and Randolph were all opposed to slavery in the abstract, and were all opposed to admitting it into new territory. One of the early acts of the patriots of the Revolution was to pass the ordinance of "87," by which slavery was excluded from all the territories we then possessed. This was going further than the Republicans of the present day claim. Many of these great men were Slaveholders; but they did not let self interest blind them to the evils of the system.—Jefferson says that slavery exists in an evil submission from upon the whites and the blacks; but he was opposed to the abolition policy, by which the slaves would be turned loose among the whites. In his autobiography he says "nothing is more certainly written in the book of fate than these people are to be free, nor is it less certain that the two races, equally free, cannot live in the same government. Nature, habit, opinion, have drawn indelible lines between them." Among the evils which he says slavery brings upon the whites is to make them tyrannical and idle. "With the morals of the people their industry also is destroyed. For it a warm climate no man will labor for himself who can make another labor for him. This is so true that of the proprietors of slaves a very small proportion indeed are ever seen to labor." What was true in Jefferson's time is true now. I might go on and give "Alumnus" every week from now till election, a column of good "black Republican" documents, all written by the most eminent Southern statesmen, begining with Washington, and including nearly all of eminence for ability, virtue and patriotism, and coming down to our own times. No longer ago than 1850, Henry Clay declared in the Senate.—"I never will, and never will vote, and no earthly power ever will make me vote to spread slavery over territory where it does not exist." At the same time that Clay was opposed to slavery, he was, like Fremont, opposed to the least interference by the general government with slavery in the States where it exists. Should there be any interference with subjects belonging to State policy, either by other States or by the federal government, no one will be more ready than myself to defend the "good old North," my native State. But with Washington, Jefferson, Franklin Henry, Randolph, Clay and Webster for political teachers, I cannot believe that slavery is pref table to freedom, or that slavery extension is one of the constitutional rights of the South. If "Alumnus" thinks that Calhoun, or any other, was a wiser statesman or better Southerner than either Washington or Jefferson, he is welcome to his opinion. I shall not attempt to abridge his liberties in the least. But I have had quite as good an opportunity as he has to form an opinion on the questions now to be settled. And when "Alumnus" talks of driving me out for sentiments once held by these great men, I cannot help thinking that he is becoming rather fanatical.

For the information of "Alumnus," I will state that he has put himself to unnecessary trouble in bringing this matter before the public. The whole subject belongs exclusively to the jurisdiction of the Trustees of the University.—There is no difficulty in bringing this, as any other question relating to the faculty or students, before them. "Alumnus" has also made another mistake, in supposing that the faculty rate themselves to influence the political opinions of the students. The students come to college generally, with their party politics already fixed; and it is exceedingly rare for them to change while here. It has, however, been often remarked that a very violent partisan at college is pretty sure to "turn over" before he has left college long. I have been connected with our University, as student and Professor, for six years, and am free to say that I know of no institution, North or South, from which partisan politics and sectarian religion are so entirely excluded. And yet we are too often attacked by the bigots of both. For my own part, I do not know the politics of more than one in a hundred of the students, except as I might infer so which party they belonged from a knowledge of the politics of their fathers. And they would not have known my predilections in the present contest had not one of their number asked me which of the candidates I preferred.

But if "Alumnus" would understand the state of things here correctly, he had better make a visit to the University. He would find each member of the faculty busy teaching in his own department, whether of science or literature; and that party politics is one of the branches which we leave the students to study at some other place and time. If "Alumnus" does conclude to visit us, there is another matter to which I might direct his attention. The two societies here, to the one or the other of which all the students belong, have each a very good library, and to those libraries are to be found the "complete works" of many of our great statesmen.—Now, for fear that the minds of the students may be poisoned by reading some of these staunch old patriots, would it not be well for "Alumnus" to exert himself through the Legislature or otherwise, to burn them out of the libraries? If not, here the works of Calhoun are, in the same case with those of Jefferson; but from appearances the Virginian seems to be read pretty often, whilst the South Carolinian maintains a posture of "masterly inactivity." When, I was a student in college, a few years ago, the young politicians used to debate in the "halls" of the societies the same questions which the old politicians were debating in the halls of Congress.—The side which opposed slavery in the abstract generally had the books in their favor, and as the records of the society will show, they had quite often "the best of the argument." So that when Col. Fremont said that he was "opposed to slavery in the abstract, and upon principle, restricted and made national by long settled convictions," he but uttered the sentiments of four-fifths of the best Southern patriots from the Revolution down to the present day; and I say each of the majority of the gentlemen among whom I was born and educated, of my neighbors, friends and kindred, nearly one half have left the State since I was old enough to remember. Many in the time I have stood by the loaded emigrant wagon, and given the parting hand to those whose face I was never to look upon again. They were going to the Free West, knowing, as they did, that free and slave labor could not both exist and prosper in the same community. If any one thinks that I speak without knowledge let him refer to the last census. He will there find that in 1850 there were fifty-eight thousand native North Carolinians living in the free states of the West. Thirty-three thousand in Indiana alone. There were, at the same time, one hundred and eighty thousand Virginians living in the free States. Now, if these people were so much in love with the "institution," why did they not remain where they could enjoy its blessings?

It is not, however, my object to attack the institution of slavery. But even the most zealous defender of the patriarchal institution cannot shut his eyes against a few prominent facts. One is, that in nearly all the slave States there is a deficiency of labor. Since the abolition of the African slave trade, these is no source for withdrawing a supply, except from the natural increase. For this reason, among others, a gentleman of Bo's's "Review" for August, 1856, advocates a dissolution of the Union, in order that the African slave trade may be revived. From North Carolina and Virginia nearly the entire increase of the slave population, during the last twenty years, has been sent of to the new states of the Southwest. In my boyhood I lived on one of the greatest thoroughfare of travel, (near Lock's Bridge, on the Yadkin river) and have seen as many as two thousand in a single day going south, mostly in the hands of speculators. Now, the loss of these two thousand did the State a great injury than the shipping off a million of dollars. I think I may ask any sensible man how we are to grow rich and prosper, while "driving out" a million of dollars per day? I am glad, however, to say that the ruinous policy is not now carried on to such an extent as it has been. But there is still too much of it. I have very little doubt that if the slaves which are now sca tered thinly over Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri, were back in Virginia and North Carolina, it would be better for all concerned. These old States could then go on and develope the immense wealth which must remain locked up for many years to come. Whilst the new states, free from a system which degrades white labor, would become a land of common schools, thrift and industry, equal, if not superior, to any in the Union.

But letting that be as it may, still no man can deny that here in North Carolina we need more men, rather than more land. Then why go to war to make more slave states, when we have too much territory already, for the force we have to work it? Our fathers fought for freedom, and one of the yeomini acts which they threw in the teeth o' Great Britain was that she forced slavery upo i the colonies against their will.—Now, the secessionists are trying to dissolve the Union because they are not permitted to establish slavery in the territory of Kansas. If the institution of slavery is a good thing, good and desirable in itself, it is the easiest thing in the world for the people to vote for its introduction at any time after they have formed a Constitution and been admitted as a state. If it is not a good thing and desirable, it would be an act of great oppression to force it upon them. For, however may one may lament the evils of slavery, it is clearly impossible to get rid of the system when once introduced. Nullify it by law if you will, still the evil remains, perhaps aggravated. But in a new state a few words in the the constitution may prevent the entire evil from entering.

From my knowledge of the people of North Carolina, I believe that the majority of them who will go to Kansas during the next five years would pre er that it should be a free State. I am sure that if I were to go there I should vote to exclude slavery. In doing so I believe that I should advance the best interest of Kansas, and at the same time benefit North Carolina and Virginia by preventing the carrying away of slaves, who may is more profitably employed at home.

Born in the "good old North State," I cherish a love for her and her people that I bear to no other State or people. It will ever be my sincere wish to advance her interests. I love also the Union of the States, secured as it was by the blood and toil of my ancestors, and whatever influence I possess, though small it may be, shall be exerted for its preservation. I do not claim infallibility for my opinions. Wiser and better men have been mistaken. But holding, as I do, the doctrines once advocated by Washington and Jeffe son, I think I should be met by argument, and not by denunciation. At any rate, those who prefer to denounce me should at least support their charges by their own name.

R. S. HEDRICK.

Chapel Hill, Oct. 1, 1856.

The Traitor and the True Republican.

Senato Mason, of Virginia, a leading Buchanier, in a letter written by him to the Brooks' ovation at Ninety-Six, S. C., regretting his necessary absence from the feast and eulogizing its hero for his chivalrous defence of Southern Rights with gatta per ha arguments, takes occasion to declare the in the event of Fremont's election to the Presidency,

"But one course remains for the South:—Immediate, resolute, and eternal separation. Better, far better, to stand toward the Northern States as we stand to the rest of the world—"Enemies in war, in peace friends"—than to remain failing under a common government, enemies under the guise of peace, or friends at war."

"Will these traitorous Buchanan leaders are thus openly preaching and proclaiming a Dissolution of the Union as the fixed purpose of the South in the event of Fremont's election, Professor Hedrick, of the State University, in North Carolina boldly avows his preference for Fremont, on these grounds:

"Fremont is on the right side of the great question which now disturbs the public peace.—Opposition to Slavery extension is neither a Northern nor a sectional ism. It originated with the great Southern statesmen of the Revolution. Washington, Jefferson, Patrick Henry, Madison, and Randolph, were all opposed to Slavery in the abstract; and were all opposed to admitting it into new territory. One of the early acts of the patriots of the revolution was to pass the ordinance of '87, by which slavery was excluded from all the territories we then possessed. This was going further than the Republicans of the present day claim. Many of these great men were slaveholders, but they did not let self-interest blind them to the evils of the system."

Let the reader contrast the sentiments of the true Republican and the Traitor. Buchanan Democracy applauds the Senator and proscribes the Professor. While say the Freemen of the North, these Buchanier threats of dissolving the Union, if the People shall dare to exercise their undoubted right of choosing whomsoever they please for President?

The Fanaticism of South Carolina.

From the Charleston Mercury.

The Dinner given to Honorable Preston S. Brooks, on Friday last, to which we devote a large portion of our space, is one of the events of the year. It was one of the largest assemblages ever gathered in South Carolina; and, from all that we have heard, it was an assemblage of Disunionists—of thinking men, who are convinced that the preservation of this Union is impossible. There was but one voice in this great assembly—the Dissolution of the Union is necessary to our salvation. Mr. Brooks was very right in admitting that the mere circumstance of his meeting and justly chastising an insolent defamer of the South, was not the cause of so great a demonstration of popular feeling. It was because this act represented a bold feature in the great national controversy, long standing and now more threatening than ever, that it was made the occasion for the expression of the conviction and feelings of the people of the State.

Such are the daily sentiments of the Buchanier press and leaders at the South. They go openly for the dissolution of the Union, if they cannot be permitted to have their own way, dragoon the North, and extend Slavery.

Kansas Land Sales—Movements and Combinations of Land Speculators.

The Indian Department has had the Delaware Reservation lands appraised according to treaty. The land lies in the valley of the Kansas, from its mouth and westward. They are supposed to be the best in the United States. Of the 200,000 acres to be sold on the 17th day of November, not one is said to be inferior to the best in the valley of the Miami or Sciota. Although the land is of such immense value, the body of it has been appraised at only one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, the lowest sum which the treaty would allow, and the highest at twelve dollars. And yet, adjacent to Leavenworth, ten acres and dollar have been offered for a government title to the same. The average appraisement per acre is said to be one dollar and seventy-five cents. Speculators, some time ago, intruded upon the reservation, and laid off a town called "Leavenworth." The lots, twenty-five hundred in number, are appraised at from two to ten dollars each, only by those officially appointed for the valuation. The average is about three and a half a lot. The sale will be held in the form of auctions, or speculators, relying upon the general ignorance concerning the value of the lands, have made actual improvements in the town, to have their lots at the appraisement, the other lots to be sold at their real value. So with the lands. The Delaware Indians own the lands, which are to be sold for their benefit.—St. Louis Intelligencer, Oct. 10.

We regret to learn that the Rev. J. V. Watson, Editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, died at his residence in this city yesterday afternoon. From the precarious state of his health for the last few months, the sad event would not have been surprising to his intimate friends at any time, yet its announcement will procure a painful shock in their minds, and carry sincere regret to a large circle of more distant friends and acquaintances.—Chicago Tribune.

POLICE COURT, OCTOBER 18.

BEFORE CLINTON WALWORTH, POLICE JUSTICE.

DRUNK AS EVER DID.—A man named John Tinfro k, was brought around from the Watch House, where he had been confined all night, on a charge of stealing one nipple from the store of Herbert Reed, on East Water street.

The defendant was discharged from custody, the Court intimating to the complainant, that the offence was of so small a nature that perhaps the matter would be as well disposed of without prosecution

John Bell, drunk fined $1, Robert Haggart, last driving on bridge, fined $1

BURGLAR CAUGHT IN THE ACT.—A man named Charles Barney was brought up from the Watch House, charged with three acts of burglary and larceny, a complaint was made and a warrant issued against him, for one on the night of the 12th of October The defendant pleaded guilty waived an examination, and in default of $1,000 bail was sent to jail to await the sitting of the Grand Jury

This case discloses a bold act, on the part of P iceman Garlick, who, in order to detect the burglar, had himself locked in the store, and waited the coming of the person. The burglar forced open the window and entered the store, packed up a number of overcoats, &c, and took some money, before he got ready to start, the officer took hold of him, he resisted, and made threats, when the officer drew his revolver, and told him he would shoot him if he attempted to get away He was then taken to the Watch House, and during Saturday, officer Garlick and Butcher found a quantity of clothing that Barney had stolen from the same store on previous occasions. The store was the Auction Rooms of Mr. Bowen, next to the Cheery street bridge

Barney admits having broken into other stores, and stolen different articles

A "STRAIGHT CUT" FOR COMMERCE.—"When in the course of human events," we are able to announce the completion of our MASON STRAIGHT CUT, we shall do it with great pleasure, and enter into sundry details and figures that will astonish some people Just now, we only wish to keep our readers posted as to the progress of the work.

On the south side of the entrance, that one of the two piers which make it is extended into the lake about 700 feet, and with the exception of a few timbers still to be laid on the top, is completed, as a safe for the winter being carried into 12 feet water

On the north side, two more cribs only remain to be sunk, (one of which will be in place to day,) to carry that pier out 700 ft There will then remain the laying of one or two tiers of timber, and throwing in of 1 or 200 cords of stone, to complete the city work on the piers

From the inner or west end of the north pier, a dock 10 feet wide is made, being sunk in cribs like the others, extending 3 or 400 ft A like dock or pier remains to be set from the inner end of the south pier

The piers extending into the lake are 20 feet wide, made of cribs 30 feet long, sunk in line, set down in the sand They are framed of massive timbers, securely bolted together Over 150,000 ft. of squared timber has been used in the construction of these piers alone

There is a good channel now alongside of the south pier for light vessels, and the steamer Hero has passed through it—there being from 7½ to 9 ft water, according to the prevailing winds.

The work has been pushed along steadily and diligently this season by the contractors We learn that they intend immediately to carry out a temporary breakwater nearly across the channel between the two piers, near the outermost extremity, so as to secure still water inside, and to keep their dredge steadily at work till the season closes, cleaning out the channel between the piers to the contract depth, and, if not completed before winter sets in, to begin early next spring, so as to have the whole ground opening all right for the first vessels

We presume that as good a channel as there is now, or a better one, will remain there through this season, the breakwater not closing it up

TO BRIDGE BUILDERS.
THE LaCrosse & Milwaukee Railroad Co invite proposals, with plans and specifications, until Wednesday noon, Oct 15th inst, for building a bridge over the Wisconsin river, on the line of their road This road extends in a north westerly direction across the State, from Milwaukee, on Lake Michigan, to La Crosse, on the Mississippi River crossing the Wisconsin River at Kilbourn City, in Sauk County The river, at this point, runs in a rocky bed, the banks of which are vertical rock bluffs to the height of 80 feet above the water, at which point they are at a distance of 80 rods, or about 300 feet apart The water is about 20 feet deep, having in the middle of the stream, a few feet of sand overlaying the rock bottom It is proposed to erect two piers about 80 feet from either bank, at which the water is about 8 feet deep at low water, with a clean rock bottom, giving a span in the middle of 200 feet, and two short spans at the ends—resting upon the natural rock as abutments It is desirable and constructible a bridge as to give a wagon way below the R. R track, passing the latter over the higher section of the bridge The Company reserve the right to award the contract to any parties, on any plan furnished, but in case of their giving the contract to any builder on any plan furnished by any other person, they will pay to the person furnishing such plan the sum of FIFTEEN HUNDRED DOLLARS, in full consideration of the plans and specifications so adopted
